FROM THE EDITORIAL TEAM

Dear Brothers.

Greetings from the editorial team of BRIDGE 2021! It's that time of the year again when we 'old boys' gather for the annual general meeting of our Association and try and relive our days at Sainik School Goalpara.

The past nearly two years have been tough for us as well as the rest of the world. The COVID-19 pandemic has affected all of us in some way or the other. Some among us or someone known to us have got infected, recuperated or even passed on to another world. Several have suffered loss of jobs, business and other opportunities.

But we are thankful to be able to still carry on despite the hurdles and the availability of vaccines, which most of us received, have made the battle with the virus somewhat more balanced or tilted in favour of humankind.

Like previous year, this year also the regular work done by OBASSG suffered and we have been unable to conduct all the activities that are usually part of the calendar. The last AGM was postponed and held this year and the earlier executive committee asked to carry on working till a new one is elected this time.

We at the editorial team have tried to bring out this edition within a very short span of time with the valuable poems, prose and articles submitted by some of our brothers and their family members. This year the editorial team decided to celebrate the inclusion of girl cadets in our alma mater by highlighting articles sent by women members of our families in the annual BRIDGE magazine.

When we studied at Sainik School we could never have imagined that one day our sisters or daughters could also become part of the institution. But since last year girl cadets are very much part of Sainik Schools across the country. And what better way to welcome them to the Sainik School fraternity by dedicating this edition of BRIDGE to our girl cadets.

The editorial team wishes to convey our gratitude and heartfelt thanks to all contributors who submitted articles at such short notice. We also express our thanks to advertisers who have been supporting us in bringing out editions of BRIDGE without any break. Hope you will go through each and every article in this edition and enjoy them. We would love to hear your views.

May the BRIDGE between us remain strong. Happy reading. Cheers.

NOTE FROM PRESIDENT

Shri Jishnu Barua, IAS, respected Chief Secretary, Assam; Capt (IN) A Muthuraman, Principal, Sainik School Goalpara and fellow SSGians.

At the very outset, I on my own behalf, and on behalf of OBASSG extend a warm welcome to all of you to the 23rd AGM of our beloved organisation.

Since the last AGM, it has been a not so good period with COVID 19 descending upon the whole earth in November, 2019 in which we lost many of our brothers along the way including our first President Late Dr. Bikash Choudhry. We pray for their souls and extend our heartfelt condolences to the bereaved families. May God give them the strength to tide over this difficult phase in their lives.

As I have mentioned earlier, due to the unforeseen outbreak of COVID-19, we could not hold scheduled AGM on the fourth Saturday in November 2020. However our team arranged a shortened AGM on 27-02-2021 where it was decided to extend this committee's tenure to November 2021.

So here we are Brothers, to hold our annual event. I extend my heartfelt gratitude to one and all present here despite the prevailing situation. I must thank the hard work put in by our team to make it possible for us to meet today.

For this I should specially mention the name of Sourav Senapati, who has been a tireless worker to make this programme a success. But sadly he is now in Hospital undergoing surgery and further treatment after he met with an accident.

Let me also take this opportunity to congratulate Lt General Rana Pratap Kalita has been conferred the Uttam Yudh Seva Medal for gallantry by The Honourable President of India Sri Ramnath Kovind on 23-11-2021.

Once again I would like appreciate all the efforts put in by the EC team members for making this happen.

Last but not the least I would like everyone to take part in the deliberations in the AGM and offer constructive suggestions to make our organisation climb greater heights.

Our General Secretary would take you through the different happenings and programs undertaken by the OBASSG in the intervening period.

Thank you.

Anowar Hussain Saikia 438/Lohit

REPORT OF THE GENERAL SECRETARY OBASSG

Presented at the 23rd Annual General Meeting held on 27 November 2021 at Guwahati

Good morning everybody. Honorable President of today's meeting, Anowar Hussain Saikia, President OBASSG; Chief Guest of today's meeting, Shri Jishnu Barua, IAS, honourable Chief Secretary of Assam; Cap (IN) A Muthuraman, Principal, Sainik School Goalpara; esteemed life members; respected members and guests. I extend my heartiest welcome to you all to the 21st AGM of OBASSG. I hope that all of you will have a very fulfilling day.

I begin by first recording my sincere thanks and gratitude to the august House that had assembled in this venue almost three years back and had shown faith in my abilities by electing me the General Secretary of OBASSG. I hope my report will justify the faith reposed. Actually, the term of this Executive Committee was supposed to end in 2020. But because of the prevailing restrictions due to the COVID pandemic, the 22nd AGM had to be held in the month on February this year. The august House decided to let the existing EC continue for the intervening period since February this year. Hence, though this report would primarily focus on activities since February 2021, there would be flashes of the entire period.

Since the 22nd AGM on 27 February 2021, four regular meetings of the Executive Committee and one online meeting have been held. Besides, members have been informally meeting and interacting at different places to discuss ways to take OBASSG and our Alma Mater forward.

WITH INDOOR PATIENTS AT GOVT. AYURVEDIC COLLEGE AND HOSPITAL

Since last some years, OBASSG has been organising a pre-Rongali Bihu celebration with the underprivileged sections of our society. This has afforded many of us some precious hours spent in the company of orphans, old age people and other such people. On 10 April this year, we organized a courtesy visit to the indoor patients at Government Ayurvedic College and Hospital at Jalukbari, Guwahati. In the presence of our honourable President, around ten members interacted with some of the indoor patients and enquired about their treatment and their well-being. Food packets were also distributed on the occasion. We record our sincere appreciation of the authorities at the hospital for making this possible for us.

CANCELLED EVENTS

The COVID pandemic has been harsh on humanity in general. It has been no different for us. Two of our signature annual events, the Manash Borah Memorial Debating Competition on 30th May every year and the annual Blood Donation Camp on Independence Day, has been the worst hit. Though we wanted to have something to mark the occasion, we had to first postpone, and subsequently cancel both the events in the last two years. It feels really sad that the two events that uphold the social aspect of our Association has been cancelled in the last two years. We are hopeful that full vaccination of the entire population of the nation will allow us to resume our normal social commitments.

58th School Raising Day

SSG holds a special place in our hearts and this was proved by the huge turnout of old boys during the Golden Jubilee of our Alma Mater. 12 November is a special day for all of us. There are many of us who can forget their personal birthday, but not the School Raising Day. Since last some years, this day has also been marked as the OBA Meet with a congregation of old boys and their families within the precincts of their Alma Mater. As last year, restrictions in place due to the pandemic, did not allow us to visit our school on the cherished day. However, there is a silver lining in that the school authority has promised to welcome batches of old boys as and when the situation normalises.

The EC celebrated the day this year in the presence of some senior members from the first two batches at Guwahati. Members also assembled at Kajalgaon, Chirang to celebrate the occasion. The Meghalaya chapter organized a voluntary Blood Donation Camp to mark the ocassion

Help in distress

Friends, one of the purposes of any Association is to come forward in times of the need of its members. OBASSG has been doing this for long. Though we do not have any institutional and constitutional mechanism in place, this has not hindered our members from contributing towards the need of those in distress. The President and the General Secretary has been issuing appeals to our members from time to time to help out the needy members, I will offer two such cases this year. Jahidul Islam, a young brother of ours had met with an accident this year in Barpeta and had to be put on life support system at a hospital in the city. We issued an appeal for financial help and many members donated in the designated bank account. Without taking any names, I would like to record that our Manipur Chapter had contributed an amount of Rs. 15,500 collected from their members towards the treatment of Jahidul. Unfortunately, Jahidul, and we also, lost the battle.

One of our most active members, Sourav Senapati, was hit by a vehicle from behind at Raha on 30 October 2021. He had to be immediately operated upon and he is still recuperating from his injuries. We wish him speedy recovery. In response to calls for help from the EC, members have donated generously. This gesture has also been extended in case of the family members as in the case of father of young brother Devesh Kumar from Bihar. Besides, there are numerous instances of individual batches helping their mates in distress.

As an Association, we also have a larger role to play that takes us beyond our immediate members. Last year, in April, we donated more than Rs. 2 Lakh by handing over a cheque to the then honourable Health Minister Dr. Himanta Biswa Sarma towards the Arogya Nidhi Fund. Moreover, our members have also been contributing directly to the central and state funds. I think it's time we put an institutional mechanism in place. I request the august House today to discuss the matter.

Life Members

Dear members, one of the strongest pillars of our Association is the Life Members. I am pleased to announce that in this short intervening period since February this year, Bikramjit Nath, 2959/Lohit and Muid Zaman Ahmed, 3238/Udaygiri have been inducted as life members. The current strength of life members is 130. We need to strategise in proper ways so that life membership of our Association can be made more attractive.

Dätabase

We have also initiated a process of building a database of our members. Nearly sixty percent of phone numbers of our members from the first to the fiftieth batch has been collected. We hope that the database will be in place before the next AGM. The database will greatly help in disseminating information to our members.

Plot of Land

Our long cherished dream, a plot of land at a suitable location in Guwahati, has not yet materialized. The file is still in the office of the Deputy Commissioner of Kamrup Metropolitan District. We hope it materializes this year so that we have not only our permanent office complex, but also a training centre to train and prepare youths from the state o joint NDA and other similar institutions.

12 A Registration

This is another unfinished agenda on our hands. Because of the prevailing pandemic, the process has got delayed but I hope that 12 A Registratuin will be completed this year so that we can apply for 80G.

On 24 November 2018, I was given the mandate by this august house to lead our Association. Given that all of us have our own professional commitments, I tried my best in these three years to do justice to the faith you had reposed in me. It is for you to judge. In these two years I have been guided and helped by many of our members, from within and outside, the EC. I wish to record my sincere gratitude and appreciation for all those esteemed members for the smooth conduct of events and programmes. I express my special gratitude to our Honourable President, Anowar Hussain Saikia and to Girija Kanta Barman for constant support and for everything. I also deeply thank the office bearers and members of our EC who were always available with suggestions and assistance. Whatever we have achieved is team work. The shortcomings, if any, are entirely mine. We also express our sincere gratitude to and appreciation of our valued sponsors.

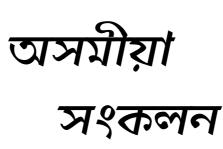

Dear friends and brothers, my long association with OBASSG has made me realise that as the alumni association of a very reputed school, we have miles to cover. While the bonding and camaraderie between batchmates is something to be envious of, the same spirit is not reflected at the level of the Association. The irony is that the strength of the parts does not get translated into the strength of the whole. We need to seriously look into this aspect of our Association. Last year has taught us that advances in technology can actually overcome physical barriers of distance. I exhort all of you to stay connected with each other. It has become more imperative now because in two years' time, we would be celebrating the Silver Jubilee of OBASSG and in 2024, the Diamond Jubilee of our alma Mater. Therefore, I exhort all of you to deepen the bond, to bring more and more members on board. Let today's be the springboard for both these events.

Today's house will elect a new Executive Committee for a two year term. I pledge my full and unstinted support to the next committee. I am sure that under a new dispensation we will grow and evolve as a socially relevant entity.

Cheers to the spirit; long live SSG; long live OBASSG.

27 November 2021 Guwahati Abhigyan Prasad General Secretary, OBASSG

সন্তান সম্পত্তি নে সম্পদ। সম্পদ গোটেই জীৱন আৱৰি ৰখা হয়, সম্পত্তি প্ৰয়োজনত বিক্ৰী কৰা হয়। সন্তান যদি সম্পত্তি নহয় তেন্তে আমি বাৰু সঁচাতৈয়ে সম্পদ হিচাপে গঢ়িব পাৰিছোনে! এয়া এক বহু মূল্যবান প্ৰশ্ন। প্ৰতি গৰাকী অভিভাৱকে হয়তো ভাবিব, কি ধৰণৰ আলোচনা। ইমান টকা খৰচ কৰি সন্তানক ভালৰো ভাল স্কুল কলেজত পঢ়োৱাইছো, আমি নাজানোঁ নে ? ? হয়, এতিয়া আমি একোৱেই নাজানো। ভাবকচোন আপোনাকো আপোনাৰ পিতৃ মাতৃয়ে ডাঙৰ দীঘল কৰি সমাজলৈ আগুৱাই দিছে। তেওঁলোকৰো কন্ত হৈছিল, কিন্তু তেওঁলোকে সৃষ্টি কৰিছিল একোজন মানৱ সম্পদ, আগুৱাই দিছিল সমাজত। সামাজত দায়বদ্ধতা পালনেৰে আমি আগবাঢ়ি গৈ আজি একোগৰাৰী সন্তানৰ পিতৃ মাতৃ হৈছো। কিন্তু সঁচাকৈয়ে বুকু ফিন্দাই কব পাৰিম নে আমি আমাৰ মা পিতা/দেউতাহতৰ ধৰে সফল ? আমাৰ মনত অহৰহ সন্তানক লৈ ভয় থাকে। চকু ৰাখিব লাগে কৰবাত যেন ভুল নকৰে। এনে নহয় যে আমাৰ সময়বোৰ খুব ভাল আছিল।

NIGHTS, LOVE IS LIFE

Ananya Barman D/O Girija Kanta Barman 1438/Lohit

I don't know whether the love you gave me is helping me in pain or is giving me the pain and increasing it

Your love is making me cry in this pain

Your love is the reason of my pain

The pain you gave is the result of my love

The love you shared is the healer of my pain

The pain and love is equal or not, we better not know

But loving you have gave me pain and in this pain your love helps and kills me at the same time

In this pain your love is the salt which increases the pain and balances it at the same time by cherishing the love you gave to go through this pain

Your love had the result of pain I never knew

Pain while gaining your love

Pain while losing my love

If I got your love by pain it wasn't a love

If I got pain after losing my love

It was never a love anyhow as you can't loose the love but the person Pain and Love are the two things which is your disease and medicine at the same time

The day she walks into that restaurant alone,

The day when no gaze is stripping her off of her skin and bones,

The day she laughs without being called out,

The day she can trust anyone sans a hint of doubt,

The day she doesn't have to exhibit her goodwill in society's symposium of validation.

The day she no longer feels the need to barricade herself from the opprobrium of the population,

The day when he sheds a tear without being ridiculed with "Men don't cry",

The day when after a long day of work he too feels free to sigh,

The day when he understands that being sensitive doesn't make him weak,

The day he knows that prioritising his parents over an office party won't make his career bleak.

The day when both he and she will not hesitate to acknowledge each other's worth, Sharing both tears of grief and moments of mirth,

Vowing to enhance each other's existence, a new date will be inscribed in the pearls of time, the date of Renaissance.

"MISS"- UNDERSTOOD LIFE

Atreyee Dutta D/O Indrajit Dutta 1337/Lohit

Dear all,

Just as every letter starts, I am also gonna start off with pleasantries. I really do hope that you have all been doing well. Considering the looming pandemic, I do understand that 'living', and not plain surviving, has somehow started to feel more like a task. However, beyond the obvious knot of oblivion, there have been moments that have been quite insightful for us and thus leading me to my rationale of writing this open letter. As a reckless 20-year-old something when the pandemic started to being 22-year-old something now, I have managed to grow in multiple directions in these past few months and I decided to just pen it down.

Life really is a kaleidoscope – of memories, of moments, of emotions, of thoughts, of insights and of people. We seem to believe that we can choose what happens next in our stories but the truth is that that choice is limited. We do decide what we would want to do next or how we'd want to act on a certain feeling but somebody and something is always going to be there to make sure almost nothing goes as planned. That's what I call illusionary rainbow authority we believe we are the managers in charge but in reality, we are just a tiny part of a huge process. That is because it's easier for us to believe that we have the final call than trusting some outside agency to come in and disrupt our best laid plans. But life really is a game of chances. Our best bets may or may not pay off, which is why a backup is necessary.

At this juncture, I arrive at my most critical insight. Life isn't about black or white thinking. If this doesn't happen then this will be the outcome. No! Stop doing that. Wikipedia describes black or white/all or none thinking as the failure in a person's thinking to bring together the dichotomy of both positive and negative qualities of the self and others into a cohesive, realistic whole. In simple words, it's just this or that and if nothing then it's all a big failure.

This is why I am emphasizing on focusing on the greys. Life isn't just black or white, it can be grey too. Grey can be the middle ground, an alternative or even a basic human survival instinct. Rather than having to choose between two inconsistent things, we can pause and try to figure out where the inconsistency is stemming from. To shed light onto this, rather than having an angry outburst or letting the fire wipe itself out, we can choose to sit down and understand what is making us so angry. This small intervention would actually go on to benefit both the angry person and the one at the receiving end. As simple and healthy it sounds, it is pretty impossible to do when our mind is clouded by an overwhelming feeling. When something so gigantic takes over our whole being, we drastically lose our ability to analyze, rationalize and criticize our thought process. Resulting from this inhibition of thoughts, we end up doing things we regret.

But that's pretty much textbook knowledge that we all know, right? My point is we are always taught the 'whys' and 'hows' of things but never the necessity to understand if that why or how works for us or no. Why did something happen? You can Google it up and it will end up with thousands of possibilities. Doesn't necessarily explain why we behaved in a certain way, right? Even to fix that problem, we have n number of solutions available on the search engines. But do these really help us or do we just pretend to be alright because somebody said it is going to fix us? To me, it's definitely the latter. Just because something has been tried and tested doesn't mean it has to work for us too. Human beings are unique individuals with significant subjective differences which allow us to understand and experience things like no other. If the feelings aren't the same, how do we deduce that one single solution is going to work for all? Sure, it may work for a lot of people but limiting our creative capacities to rote learn and religiously follow something is quite a redundant approach. This is why I decided that I have to come up with my own unique plan to deal with my problems.

Whenever I sense a problem incoming, I just "S.A.D A.C.T." This is an acronym that I have come up with to regulate a healthy way of dealing with emotions and thoughts. Human beings have a quick reactivity time, even if that reaction just entails a silent treatment. Considering that, my first response would be to just tell myself, "Hey, stop. Sit down and relax. Let's process this." After I do sit down and not immediately respond to the stimulus, I would analyze the emotion I am experience or the chain of thoughts I am having. It is obligatory for me to come up with as many possibilities as I can to better understand the situation at hand and thus have better solutions for the same. After I am done processing my emotions, I would move on to narrowing my possibilities and drawing conclusions.

Once I have arrived at a suitable conclusion which might be causing all of the problems I am facing at a particular time, I acknowledge it. However tough the conclusion may be to accept, it is quintessential that I acknowledge or accept that, yes, the truth may be ugly but it really is the truth. Without acknowledgment, our road to growth can never begin. When I do believe that there is something I need to resolve, I'll have to move on to coming up with suitable solutions. The problem has been identified, therefore the most sensible thing to do after that would be to find how to stop doing that, minimizing its effect or even bend it in a way to aid our growth. Solutions can be unconventional too as long as it positively affects us and those around us. Solutions can be infinite and to know for sure which one might work for us in general or in a particular situation, we have to test it out. I try to come up three ways to deal with things. The primary focus would usually be about cutting off the roots of the problem so it doesn't occur again.

This is usually for things unnecessarily react to; things that are harmful to my well-being. Otherwise, I'd just understand why I behave the way I do in a certain situation and try to force myself to take an alternative course of action. Guess I did take 'fake it till you make it' a little too seriously! And if nothing works, I repeat the steps until I successfully restore my mental peace. The solution isn't as mechanical as it sounds and doesn't in anyway imply that I am a well-adjusted individual who doesn't have random bouts of crying or gets worked up about things or the worst, letting someone face the wrath of my anger. The truth is that we are all reactive individuals who are bound to make mistakes and mess up every now and then however hard we try to be 'perfect' all the time.

Our fear to accept us as we are drives us to do things that may be avoided if we just stop trying to fix everything and sometimes let ourselves just be. Our energy is sacred and knowing that it takes a lot of time to regain it back might enlighten us to not waste it on everybody, including feeding our negative thought patterns. The upside is that we are smart individuals who are capable of coming up with perfect ways to manage out self if we can just let the inner self critic sleep. Thus, cherish life but don't let small problems blemish it. 'Cause remember— you only live once.

With love/Yours sincerely, A 'woke' 22-year-old trying to make meaning of life!

SATISFACTION IN LIFE

Lakshyajay Kalita S/O Devajeet Kalita 1451/Lohit

"Ravi! Wake up! Don't you have school?" shouted mom loudly.

"It's so humid today. I think I'm sick," I replied in a bored tone. Mom was used to my tantrums. She knew I wasn't sick at all. She also knew that I was not going to get up so easily. The only way to make me get off the bed was to turn off the air conditioner.

When she did that, I hopped off the bed and rushed to the washroom saying, "Oh my God! I will burn if I stay in that room anymore."

When I was done using the washroom, Mom gave me some hot porridge and a glass of hot milk. I didn't say anything about the porridge, but I said, "Oh please, can I have a glass of cold drink instead of everyday boring milk?"

"No, Ravi! Drink up your milk quietly," replied Mom with a hint of anger in her tone. As usual, I closed my nostrils and drank the milk. I dressed up and rushed to school. I had to walk some distance, approximately 500 metres, to get to the place where the school bus stopped. I walked, actually jogged to the place. Nearby, there were some masons laying bricks to construct a house.

I heard one of them say, "Oh! It's so hot! I will give anything for a little rest."

Another said, "You're right. I will be so happy if it rains."

I was too feeling hot, waiting for my bus. Oh! How I wished it would rain! But it didn't and soon, my bus arrived. I went inside and was off to school.

In our PT Class, I was feeling too hot to run in the field but as PT was compulsory, I had to. Running made me feel sick. I just wanted it to rain, rain like anything. And I wanted that wicked sun to go away and hide behind the clouds. But nothing like that happened, and after the bell rang, I grabbed my bag and rushed towards my school bus. I was feeling sick in the bus and was afraid that I might puke.

So I got out of the bus stop earlier than mine and walked. Suddenly, I saw that the sky was covered with clouds. It was the sign of rain. Oh! How I wished it'd not rain. I knew Mom will be very angry if she finds me wet. So I walked faster. Soon, I reached my stop. Suddenly, it started raining, raining cats and dogs. There was a shop with a tilted roof near the construction site. The shop was closed and so I took shelter under the tilted roof. The rain was making a lot of noise. I wished the rain would stop soon. The masons were still there.

One of them said, "Oh, this rain. How will we go home? I will give anything for the sun to come up." I didn't pay attention to the masons anymore. I was going to think more about the rain, when suddenly I remembered what I was thinking during my PT. I just wanted it to rain like anything, but when it did rain like anything, I regretted it.

Don't we all have favourites? We have favourite food items, books. games, places, movies and even seasons. Some like winter, while others like summer and some even Monsoon. Hove summer the most as we can have a lot of ice creams and cold drinks in that season. But in the morning, I was groaning because of the summer. Once when it was summer, our air conditioner broke down. I was sweating all day and cursed the summer with names like silly, bad, worst, even though I say it is my favourite season. Yes! That's what we do all the time. Curse! Curse the summer, winter, curse the monsoon, curse every season. Nothing really satisfies us. Nothing! Think how bad all the seasons feel. I wonder if there is any kind of season which never dissatisfies anyone. I searched for the answer in my brain and got NO. There isn't any kind of season which never dissatisfies us. I looked at the masons once again. They were still cursing the heavy rain, annoyed. They were calling very bad names, so I stopped noticing them.

Suddenly, some sunlight fell on my cheek. I slowly realized that the rain had ceased and a light sunlight was out. Suddenly, being wet did not seem too bad and I couldn't help getting out of my shelter. It was a soothing feeling. I couldn't hear anything unpleasant, like the talk of the masons.

I closed my eyes. I didn't stop the sunlight or the rain to fall on me. The sunlight warmed me and my heart while the rain wet my negative feelings about the weather. Was this the weather which does not dissatisfies anyone? Was this the pleasant weather which had both sunlight and rain in it in such a manner that it doesn't do any harm to anyone? If yes, then what is the name of the weather? It can't be sunny or rainy so is it rainsunny or sunrainy. I slowly opened my eyes and looked at the sky, and there it was – the colourful and beautiful thing, the seven-coloured rainbow.

AN EVENTFUL DAY REKINDLING CHILDHOOD MEMORIES

Papori Thakuria D/O AkshoyThakuria 505/Udaygiri

Since my childhood, Sainik School Goalpara (SSG) existed in my fondest memories in addition to my own primary education institution, which I attended. I knew my father attended the school and it is a wellknown school. My dad's friend since his SSG days would frequently visit us with his family. Most of the time, both the buddies would sit in a corner of our drawing room and speak for hours remembering their school days, while the coffee kept getting colder. It was a win-win situation for all, as the children of both families got plenty of time to play while their mothers were busy in the kitchen.

The Oil and Gas Company where my father worked had a large number of SSG alums working together. They were from separate batches, and as a result, were of varied ages. Quite often, SSGians' families would get together, either in the clubhouse or in their own homes. During our teenage, we eagerly awaited for such events, since they meant we had no other obligations than to eat and play. As was customary, fathers and mothers made separate groups. The SSGians in the group were at different levels in the corporate hierarchy, yet there was no distinction when they were together in the gatherings as though they were brothers from the same mother. There was always a strict no-noise policy in place wherever they met. The camaraderie that the SSGians exuded could never be witnessed elsewhere in the company's other factions. Even amidst adversity, the entire SSG family remained steadfast. The most senior members took centre stage at all times. The members, women, and children were all addressed by name and always cared for, whether at a party or otherwise.

As a group, we learnt a lot from each other. We were able to grasp the concept of friendship at a very young age, and we could also see the closeness amongst the former students of SSG. Growing up within a group of SSGian parents who were disciplined, sincere, dedicated, and respectful of each other's differences had a major influence on our lives.

Therefore, I have always wanted to pay a visit to the school that churned out such good people. They are well known for their work ethic and dedication, and all of the SSGians are recognised for their integrity and reliability.

Finally, when the time was right, my father was relocated to Guwahati. That year marked the school's Golden Jubilee celebration. On the last day of the celebration, I went to my dad's school with my parents. We went from Guwahati to Mornoi in our own cars, along with dad's classmates who attended the event. When we all arrived at the school's front gate together, it was awe-inspiring. As far as I know, the lovely gate was a gift from the former pupils of the school as a way of showing their gratitude. The whole day was filled with interesting events that I will always remember fondly. Almost all the ex-students forgot about their family as they screamed embraced one another. Everything from the helicopter landing, the parade, the cultural programme, the paratrooper activities, and the tour to the hostels, the school building, and finally the mega buffet was faultless, fantastic, and fine-tuned. It was a wonderful event. It was like a dream come true for me to be there. I was able to see the school: I had heard so much about as a youngster. I was really awestruck. I got to meet a lot of Dad's buddies and their families. In the late afternoon, we drove home via Goalpara, the original location of the school and the place where my father concluded his school days. He was able to recall every details of his past experiences. We arrived back in Guwahati with a poignant heart after our trip. We also had the opportunity to visit the army cantonment near Doomdooma on their raising day and that was again worth the visit.

Girls are now being enrolled in SSG. My heart goes out to them since I could not get the chance when I was young. Even yet, I will always admire the school's emphasis on all-around growth and preparing kids for whichever career path they choose.

I would want to express my best wishes to the school, and I hope that this institution will continue to serve as an example for all women who aspire to be on an equal footing with men and serve their nation.

THE FALL- HUMANITY

Dipti Rana W/O Raja Rana 2672/Lachit

I was very happy today as I woke up and could see the sunlight beaming from the hole in our roof. Its been pouring since few days straight. I was told that my father, whom I didn't see much off lately, left us. Mother also is out of the house since yesterday and is nowhere to be found. The table is empty, no breakfast today. But for a 7 year old food is not life like roaming about leisurely in the street is. As I was on my usual rounds inspecting everything feeling like an undercover agent in those bollywood movies, I got to watch a few times peeping through the window of a better off neighbour.

My life is free as I see my contemporaries carrying heavier baggage and crossing the streets towards their buses and getting some kind of education to become a snob. I guess they are also taught to be nicer to people who can provide them with what they need, they teach them selfishness. They don't let me come near them as if I want to and call me out "street dog" and laugh. They forget I love animals, I even have a pet rat who sometimes appears from the small corners of my home searching for something it cannot find and I guess will never find, at least in my home.

I see a familiar face waving at me, as I draw closer I realised it was my neighbour. He had promised to give me a ride in his bike when he is free. He said "today is the day", I gleefully cheered and quickly tried to climb up his back, I wasn't ready yet but he started the engine and drove past the road like an obstacle race. In a matter of no time I could feel the wind pierce me through like a blade, I closed my eyes for a while and felt like I was flying. It felt like I could get used to it. Just then there was a loud noise and shouts and I was down on the road. As I didn't know our bike had hit a big pothole. I laid down immovable on the road as blood streamed out of my ripped open head. Sometime had passed, I am not sure how long but the snobbish kids spotted me in shouts "street dog" "the street dog". A few people gathered and watched me as if I am a piece of art, I felt special, very special. A man came and started telling my neighbour to take me to the hospital while he on the other hand was searching for a contact number to reach my mother knowing it was just a waste of time. The man in a loud voice said "put him in the car" another added "take him to the hospital" yet someone screamed: "lest he will die".

Every day many unfortunate kids die. I clearly don't understand whom to blame this on: the government who does not take care of the roads or I should blame the million Indians as I always find the driver is wearing a helmet but the child he is carrying in his two wheeler is not protected. Is it not a responsibility of us all as individual as well together with the government to take care of the people we love. I guess there is a reason behind: it's called "accident".

SKILL DEVELOPMENT IS KEY TO INDIA'S GROWING UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

Dr. Jagadish Nath 2030/ Chilarai

One of the burning issues that India needs to tackle to be a developed and prosperous nation is its growing unemployment rate. As per an assessment conducted by the National Sample Survey Office, India's unemployment rate was at a forty-five year high of 6.1% in the year 2018. And if we take into account the impact of COVID pandemic, the issue gets further aggravated into even bigger proportions for sure. Consider the current statistics which states that only 10% of the fresh graduates are employable and rest of the 90% lack skills required to be hired by corporates. At present, although India's GDP is growing at great rate of around 6-8% but proportionate job creation is not happening. This is another big worry.

Despite so many odds, India has a unique demographic advantage with more than 60% of the population in young age group. India is one of the youngest nations in the world with around 28 million youth getting added to India's workforce every year. Therefore, if this population is turned into a skilled workforce, the employability would not be an issue anymore. In such a situation, these so called liabilities would turn into a huge resource. The potentiality of turning the economy towards sky by this pool of human resource is almost a certainty.

And that is why skill development has been considered one of the critical aspects for job creation in India. The advantages of skill development in India are many fold. The outcomes of skill development would be:

- 1 Increase in proficiency
- 2 Growth in skill sets
- 3 Increase in Productivity
- 4 Increase in individual performance level

Thus, the skill development institutions can play a significant role in skilling this huge quantity of raw materials into a high value human resource pool. The results would not only bring about an improved scenario of employability but also it would create a sizable number of entrepreneurs or job creators. The proof of it can be seen from the fact that since when the government and universities have focused on skill development, it has been found that many students were placed easily during the placement drives. Organizations would always look for an effective, productive and proficient employee. With the skill development, the people are becoming more productive with a better self-growth and the growth of the organization.

Along with it, we can see that there is an ever growing number of talented youths becoming successful entrepreneurs and creating lot and lots of jobs. It is also heartening to see that the Government is trying to provide support and assistance in this regard. As per the government, with these efforts on skill development, they aim to increase the employability rate to at least 70%. With various Skill awareness programs, the general public is also slowly understanding the prospects of skill training and participation in various skill training is gradually increasing.

Besides, Skill development training is adding to the Personal Development of individuals. It enhances the proficiency of a person in any particular area. Skill enhances to build the professional network, better communication, time management and negotiation skills. And thus individuals with proper skill training grows fast in their professional career and also can lead a balanced work-life.

Another advantage of skill training is nurturing talent. Skills are something that can be acquired by learning. Skill training is helping the people to identify, train and nurture their innate talent in the desired field. It finally leads to better job satisfaction. Due to skill development training, the number of dropouts are also coming down. One of the biggest issues of India is unemployment. Skill development of helping the students to process the basic skills required by the employers today and direct a good direction towards their career. The foundations for an effective. efficient and sustainable skill development ecosystem had been already laid over the course of the last few years, however, it is time now to build upon it. As per a Bloomberg Economic article and its projections. India's GDP will grow from $2.7 trillion in 2019 to $5 trillion by 2025 and $8.4 trillion by 2030. Whether we achieve it or not depends on how we capitalize this decade and how effectively we eliminate the causes of disruptions. We must utilize this opportunity to rebuild ourselves rationally and critically with greater impetus. The task is herculean but not impossible. The distance between a probable future and a possible future is always shortened by resilience and determination.

Since we are in the middle of the juncture of skill expansion, every single person needs to better their skills to survive in this competitive world. It has been proved beyond doubt that skills are one of the most essential traits that can decide the career graph of any individual. Additionally, with every passing day, one will need to keep himself upskilling and re-skilling along with basic skills to stay in the competition. Without continuous learning, upskilling and re-skilling, one shall not be relevant anymore in the work place. The constant change, innovations and disruptions are normal in today's world thus this uncertainty. It is for not for no reason that we call the world today as VUCA (world full of volatility, uncertainty, complexity, and ambiguity) world! Naturally, at this point, the question of relevant skills which would make one ready for future work place would come. Let's discuss some them briefly, one by one.

The future skills:

1. Creativity: Creativity is one of the most important skills that anyone would be needing not just to advance career but just to survive in the competition. Irrespective of domain or sector, creativity would be crucial to be in the competition. It is a myth that creativity is something that you are born with and can't be developed. Creativity, like any other skills, can also be developed with proper scientific training and rigorous practice.

- 2. Emotional Intelligence (EQ): The days of being aloof and becoming successful are gone. Teamwork and only teamwork will sail you through in this turbulent, uncertain and highly competitive age. And to become an effective team leader or an efficient team player, one must possess right amount of emotional intelligence. EQ plays a very important and a much crucial role in surviving in team environment. Indeed, a person's ability to control, express and be aware of is one of the most powerful ones. Human beings are least rational when it comes to emotions and responses to emotions! Traits of empathy, work, and integrity, mostly depends on Emotional Intelligence level.
- 3. Analytical Thinking: Any person who has got critical thinking skills can innovate newer solutions and better human life. With true analytical thinking, you can easily solve future issues and deliver more accurate and proven solutions. Again, analytical thinking skills can be developed with proper training and structured regular practice. "Information is power"- is true only when such information can be utilised for creation or for solution.

- 4. Active and continuous Learning: Involvement active learning can make people accomplish many things in life. The day we cease to learn, we cease to grow! In personal or in professional life, active and continuous learning skills keeps one relevant and in demand.
- 5. Decision Making: With innovations and new developments in the field of technology, specially, information technology, machine learning, artificial intelligence, internet of things etc., there is no doubt that, it has become easier to make certain decisions. However still, there are even more complex situations and circumstances where human decision making can't be replaced with. Nor, in the near future, human decision making will ever be ignored. Moreover, while all the machines and different data can process information and suggest options, there must be someone who would need to select one such option keeping in mind many qualitative aspects which machines does not understand. Therefore, relevant decision making skills is any worker shall always be essential and in demand.

- 6. Interpersonal Communication Skills: The miraculous ability to exchange information between people is a skill that is and will always be in high demand. Effective communication is key to success of any team. Message with right tone along with a positive body language can impact tons of people positively. At the same time, right message with wrong tone and negative body language can have a disastrous impact.
- 7. Leadership Skills: Singapore and Pakistan could be two extreme examples of what leaders can do to a country! Likewise, there are Nokias & Kodaks and Googles & Infosyses in the corporate world to prove what leaders mean to organizations.
- 8. Cultural Intelligence: One thing which most of the organizations in India are yet to understand is the cultural intelligence of their employees. With opening of boundaries and increased globalization, it is very important to understand and respect cultural orientations of each other in the work place. Therefore, this is also an important future skill requirement.

- 9. Technological Skills: As and when the 4th industrial revolution came, it fuelled the technological revolution right to another level. Yes, every day, newer technologies are being invented where you can indulge yourself in different skills.
- 10. Chance Management Skills: Learn to manage change to stay in relevance. Whether adopting to unwelcome changes forced by nature or enforcing change to stay in competition, one must acquire skill to understand and manage change.

However, helping people to acquire such a wide range of skills is complex, and cannot possibly be easily developed entirely through traditional education system. Therefore public and private learning providers need to work directly and integrally with employers and industry. This would offer learners a much needed handson practical learning in the workplace, simulated work environments, and team based activities as well as some classroom based learning. This is what the skilling is all about! With skilling, individuals will not only have practical experience they need to meet the appropriate standard w.r.t. employability but also will be able to contribute to the overall economy of the nation.

And as far as our state is concerned, the government of Assam seems to have realised the importance of imparting skill education and have already passed an act in 2020 to set up The Assam Skill University in Mangaldoi.

Although, the said university is not the first one in the country of the kind but certainly one of the few pioneering ones. Let's hope that the university becomes functional as soon as possible and help Assam bridge the education and employability gap.

AN UNFORGETTABLE MARRIAGE IN CHAPRA

Saurav Borgohain 2136/Lohit

It was in the year 1997, when I was studying in JEC, that one of our SSG friends, Rammohan Upadhyay (nicknamed Ramu), planned to marry. He completed his Engineering Diploma from Bongaigaon Polytechnic and was working in a company then at Guwahati. His parental home was in Chapra, Bihar, but he was raised by his elder brother, who worked and lived in Bongaigaon.

Ramu (Rammohan) was the first to marry when we were still students and unemployed. But our dear friend wanted us to attend his marriage, so he arranged reservations for ten friends on the train from Guwahati to Patna (back and forth). We tried to collect 10 friends for attending the marriage but could gather 9 only, and so we accommodated one passenger with the extra ticket against money for compensating our food bill!! We were excited to visit Rammohan's marriage, and we thoroughly enjoyed the journey right from Guwahati to Patna station by singing songs, playing cards and gossiping, finally reached Patna by late night. From Patna we went by bus to Chapra the following day morning.

At Chapra bus stand, relatives of Ramu received us and they conveyed to us the most unpleasant news that Ramu's had mother expired that very morning. We were stunned and couldn't understand how to react, but anyway moved to Ramu's place. The marriage house had a gloomy look. We consoled

Ramu to face the reality and bear the irreparable loss. We came to know that dead body was in the first floor of their house and Ramu's brothers wanted the marriage to happen which was scheduled the next day itself, as if marriage gets postponed then it will pass on to next year. Ramu's mother was already bedridden and his father already expired a few years back and all responsibilities were on Ramu's elder brothers only. But Ramu was not at all convinced to get married, but after our repeated persuasion, he agreed. They sorted the marriage plan out that there will be no celebration from Ramu's house. Ramu's bride's family booked a hotel in between Ramu's house and bride's house, and so our celebration will start from that hotel only. After marriage Bride will come to Ramu's House but will return immediately to her house for some local rituals. Then, we will take the dead body to the banks of river Ganga for last rites. So, dead body will be kept for one more day by injecting with formaldehyde solutions. We, with our doctor friends (studying MBBS) who were attending Ramu's marriage, injected multiple formaldehydes solutions and kept the dead body fresh for another day. On that very night, they gave our accommodation in a room at first floor next to the dead body's room. We were little frightened but since we were 9; we gathered the courage. Interestingly, when I went to the washroom that night which had a tube-well in it, the water was coming out automatically from the tube well. I was totally nervous and informed my other friends about the said incident. All visualised that thing and reported the same to Ramu. But Ramu clarified our doubt that ground floor tube well was connected to the first floor tube tube well and if anyone uses ground-floor tube well small amount of water comes out from the first floor tube well as well. So our anxiety was overcome and because of tiredness from the train journey got a sound sleep.

The next day morning i.e. marriage day, two of our friends went to decorate the car of the groom and rest of us went for a round of Chapra town. In the evening, we went to the hotel in silence mode from Ramu's house and our proper celebration started from there. I still recollect the scene of band party and women carrying lights on their heads on both sides of the road right from that hotel to bride's house. We danced to our hearts out on the streets of Chapra en route to bride's home to the tune of Bhojpuri and Bollywood hits. After an enjoyable evening, the marriage ceremony was solemnised, and we returned to Ramu's house with the bride the following day morning. The bride after some formalities went back to her house.

Now, our next duty started by uttering - "Ram Naam Satya Hain" through the streets of Chapra and carried the dead body on our shoulders to the banks of river Ganga for cremation. What an experience it was, and for the first time, many of us had that experience of carrying a dead body for the last rites. We sat by the bank of river Ganga for long hours till we completed the cremation. We had different feelings, sometime joy and sometimes sorrow, but that's life in its true essence.

Our return journey was on the next day, but to our ill luck, Ranveer Sena of Bihar declared Bihar bandh that day. We were very much disheartened, but Ramu and his brothers sorted out a plan that - we will move by local train from Chapra to Sonepur, from Sonepur to Hajipur we will go by Tempo and from Hajipur to Patna we can go by bus. As in Bihar, the impact of Bandh decreases from afternoon onwards. As per plan, we bid farewell to Ramu's family and started our return journey from Chapra by train to Sonepur. From Sonepur we hired 2 tempos to Hajipur, but on our journey we observed that a huge mob was approaching towards us from front. When the mob reached near, the tempo driver stopped the tempo and flew away, leaving us baffled. We also tried to hide wherever we could to save our life and noticed that mob passed by our tempo, causing no harm. After sometime we again gathered nearby our tempo. The tempo drivers refused to take us to the Hajipur bus stand after that incident, but we requested them to at least take us on foot to the destination, as we didn't know the route. After begging literally, one driver guide us to the Hajipur bus stand on foot.

It was almost 1.30 pm then that we reached Hajipur bus stand and bus service was about to operate from 2 pm to Patna. We were amused to see that some passengers went to the bus top for their travel to Patna. On enquiry, we came to know that inside the bus the fare is Rs.16/- and outside the bus (bus top) the fare is Rs.8/-. So most of us got another adventure by sitting on the bus top from Hajipur to Patna. The excitement to travel on a bus top was something unique and enjoyed the beauty of Bihar, especially the Gandhi setu. And from Patna we got our train to Guwahati where reserved tickets were already made by our dearest large hearted friend Ramu akka Rammohan Upadhyay. In that way, an unforgettable marriage experience ended which will remain in my heart forever.

(This story is real and I remember some of my friends who were part of this memorable incident like Gautam Debnath, Dr. Anupam Basumatary (Phantom), Nripen Saikia, Dr. Bijoy Deka, Durjoy Rabha, Mridul etc.)
